U. S. Relief Workers Murdered in Syria

BRIGANDS KILL 3 OF CONVOY GOING TO AID OF NEAR EAST

NAMES NOT GIVEN IN REPORT SENT TO STATE DEPARTMENT.

OCCURRED FEB. 1

Official Notification Comes from French Commissioner at Beirut.

(By Associated Press)
Washington, Feb. 4.—The murder of three American relief workers in Syria was reported today to the state department.

The Americans were part of a convoy for American relief supplies and were killed by brigands February 1 near El Wali, north of Aleppo. The names of the Americans were not given in the dispatch.

The relief expedition was under the auspices of the American committee for the relief of the near east, the headquarters of which are in New York.

Official notification of the killing of the Americans was given by General Gouraud, the French high commissioner at Beirut, to American Vice Consul McCutcheon at Beirut. General Gouraud formally expressed his regret.

PALMER PRAISES RAIDS ON RADICALS; DENIES "COLD FEET"

(By Associated Press)
Washington, Feb. 4.—Deportation of radicals counted with arrests of others, and the "vigorous enforcement of existing laws has given notice that the United States intend to keep order and help improve conditions," Attorney General Palmer today told the house judiciary committee. The positive intention of the government to punish crimes of "reds" and communists has created a state of order which would have been impossible without arrest and deportations, he added.

"Some misunderstanding exists in regard to my attitude towards this legislation," he said. "Some said I had 'cold feet,' others that I had 'turned tail.' That of course is not correct. I did not attend because I did not give up the pending rule for the Sterling-Graham bill."

Pending Measures Jarrul.
More than that, some of the more important legislation, Mr. Palmer said, adding that pending measures were so drastic and far-reaching that the government had the power for which they were intended.

"The situation calls for legislation of simple character, such as the bill of rights, but filling a hiatus in laws which exists in present statutes," said Mr. Palmer.

"There is no federal statute which is adequate to meet the situation. A condition of revolutionary intent exists in this country on the part of aliens and citizens, and the law is spread in character to merit consideration by congress. Threats are written by persons who would injure and overthrow the government."

Two Speeches Questioned.
"And these threats which are being circulated on the part of such persons are the kind which do not settle those who employ them to the guarantee of the so-called right of free speech."

The speaker said he disagreed with those who claimed revolutionary utterance should be met by arguments instead of statutory laws.

He agreed with the bill drafted by the department of justice and introduced last November by Representative Daves, democrat, Ohio, be reported favorably.

Ex-Kaiser Keeps Castles And 83 Villas, Gives Only Ruins to Estate, Is Charge

Eccentricity of Sum in Disposal of Hohenzollern Fortune Is Condemned by Berlin Newspaper as Masterpiece of Prussian Efficiency.

(By Associated Press)

Berlin, Tuesday, Feb. 3.—Efforts to keep intact the fortune of Emperor William are condemned by the Vorwaerts. The newspaper says this movement is in behalf of "a man who ruined Germany."

"The bill now before the Prussian diet represents a masterpiece of old Prussian efficiency," says the newspaper, "for a fanciful status of Count Hohenzollern is placed on the basis of his right to property while nothing is said as to his guilt or the political situation. It is perhaps well to remember that the national constitution gives the government the right to seize private fortunes."

Details of the measure are given in paragraph four of the bill, declaring the royal house will give "in the interest of the general welfare" certain possessions such as real estate, works of art, and valuable articles, but provides the former emperor must be paid 100,000,000 marks in compensation.

REPORTER TELLS OF VISITING NEWBERRY AND CODY IN EAST

(By Associated Press)
Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 4.—Introduction of testimony of conspiracy, fraud and corruption in the election of United States Senator Newberry was resumed by the government in federal district court here today.

James P. Sweeney, New York representative of the Detroit News, was recalled to complete his testimony in Michigan today for the conclusion of opening statements for the defense. Sweeney related a conversation in New York with Frederick Cody, one of the defendants in which Mr. Newberry's candidacy for the senate was discussed.

"It will be a great time for the boys in Michigan because they will spend a barrel of money," the witness quoted Cody as saying.

Sweeney testified today that in the middle of January, 1918, he called on Edward Fitzgerald, secretary to Mayor Oscar Marx, Detroit, at the Baltimore hotel in New York. He said, was about to sail for Europe.

Robert Oakman and Mayor Marx were related to money," he said. "We stayed an hour later they came back to face with Commander Newberry leaving Oakman's room."

Sweeney said he frequently called at Newberry's office at 230 Broadway. Newspaper duties were the usual objects of such visits. He testified that Frederick Cody was there "very often."

Sweeney said Cody usually walked past the office attendants without question while others were not allowed beyond an outer railing until permission to enter came from the inner office.

Sweeney said in his talks with Senator Newberry about the senatorial campaign "he showed me letters and telegrams from Paul H. King and that Newberry told him he 'was kept posted almost daily' on happenings in Michigan."

Sweeney said he remembered one specific conversation with Cody in Newberry's office.

"We returned to money," he said. "We stood apart from others in the room and Cody told me that he had been out to Michigan and Cody said the bill is off out there. The sky is the limit."

Prohibition Knocked Trade on U. S. Ships, Others Had Own Bars

(By Associated Press)
Washington, Feb. 4.—Ship of the former German passenger liners seized at the outbreak of the war was forced on the shipping board by operation of the national prohibition law. Chairman Payne is understood to have told President Wilson. Mr. Payne was said to have written the president that the government could operate the liners in competition with privately owned ships on which wine and other liquors were served. He was understood to have said that the board announced that intoxicants would not be carried on its liners plying to South America and elsewhere practically all boats for these ships had been cancelled.

Canadian Pensions Higher Than Those in America

(By Associated Press)
Ottawa, Ont. (By Mail).—Comparisons between Canadian and American pensions has caused some government officials to declare that Canadian pensions are higher in all classes except to totally disabled men or to their dependents. In the stock market there was a sympathetic break, ascribed largely to inability of traders to renew loans.

CREEL COOPERATED WITH RUSSIAN REDS, MARTENS DECLARES

SAYS CHAIRMAN OF PUBLIC INFORMATION SPREAD "SISSON DOCUMENTS."

ROBINS ACCUSED

Red Cross Worker Named in Disclosure of Anti-German Plan.

(By Associated Press)
Washington, Feb. 4.—"Officials of the United States" cooperated actively with the Russian soviet government in conducting propaganda designed to undermine the imperial German government, Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, representative of soviet Russia in this country, declared today before the senate investigating committee. In response to questions by Chairman Moses, Martens named Raymond Robins, formerly of the Red Cross organization in Russia, and "agents" of the committee on public information. "At a time when a branch of the United States government during 1918 was preparing the issuance of alleged documents on the basis of which it was implied that officials of the soviet government were paid agents of the imperial German government," Martens said, "my government was actively cooperating with agents of that branch of the United States government in soviet Russia in circulating among the German army appeals to overthrow the German government."

Former Senator Hardwick, Georgia, counsel for Martens, gave notice that Robins would be called to testify.

"So Creel was working with you on one hand and attacking you on the other?" said Senator Moses.

"Yes," Martens said.

Propaganda Urging Revolution.
All propaganda urging revolution sent out by the soviet government, Martens said, was designed to cause a revolution and to replace against powers openly and actively hostile to the soviet republic."

He added that many offers to drop all circulation of matter of the kind in exchange for resumption of commercial relations had been made and that the soviet faith of the offers was unmistakable.

MARTENS SECURED RELEASE OF YANKS

(By Associated Press)
Washington, Feb. 4.—Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, representative in this country of the Russian soviet government, made public today a cablegram he had secured from Siberia, off, assistant commissioner of foreign affairs now at Copenhagen, advising that American Red Cross prisoners recently captured by Siberians were released unconditionally. Pending that action, Martens said in a statement he wished to assure relatives of the Americans that they would be treated with every consideration.

Martens suggested to Livinoff that the soviet government call attention to the "incongruity" of the release of the Americans while Russian citizens in America are being unjustly arrested and maltreated, and while Martens himself is under "threats of deportation."

FAMINE, DISEASE, COLD AND ROBBERY, GRIP PETROGRAD

(By Associated Press)
London, Feb. 4.—Petrograd is described as a city suffering from famine, cold, disease, and robbery in a report made by Prof. Zeidler, president of the Russian Red Cross society.

"Owing to want of fuel the capital is becoming a desert," he says. "In a few houses only there are still some inhabitants and these generally live in their cellars. Famine conditions are terrible. If the population had not already accustomed itself to what ordinary people would not eat at all, they would have no food whatever."

"The water supply has stopped owing to the want of fuel and the inhabitants draw their supplies from the Neva or the canals or use melted snow. Spotted typhus and Spanish influenza and various complications have put an end to the sufferings of many unfortunate people. There are no medicines to be had at all. Only four hospitals are still open."

"Electric lights are permitted from 5 to 8 p. m. only. Train cars run at certain hours and then merely on the routes needed by the bolsheviks. The authorities are powerless to guard public safety. Gangs of robbers are at work in the deserted quarters of the city carrying off all that may have been left after the searches made by the red army."

RED TURKS ANNOUNCE HOLY WAR ON BRITAIN

GERMAN PEACE ENVOY RESIGNS, REFUSES TO TRANSMIT ALLIED DEMAND FOR WAR CRIMINALS

Note Given Back to Millerand with Statement That He Is Leaving for Berlin on First Train; France Is Indifferent.

(BULLETIN)
(By Associated Press)

Berlin, Feb. 4.—Baron Kurt Von Lersner, head of the German mission in Paris, has been relieved of that office. Baron Von Lersner, it is stated, had received explicit orders to transmit the expected allied note on extradition demands to his government.

(Paris advices quote Von Lersner as declaring he had resigned rather than transmit the list of German names demanded by the allies.)

Paris, Feb. 4.—Kurt Von Lersner, lead of the German peace delegation here has returned to Premier Millerand the list containing the names of Germans whose extradition is demanded by the allies, which was handed to him last night, and has informed the premier that he has resigned and is leaving for Berlin by the first train.

Baron Von Lersner told the Associated Press his decision was in line with the attitude he had maintained throughout regarding the question of extradition. He declared he had held that no German official could be instrumental in carrying out the extradition clauses of the treaty and consequently the matter having come up in a definite final form there was nothing left for him to do but to resign and go home.

In French official circles, it was explained, the feeling was that despite the general indifference on the extradition question manifested by the public there was an important reason why the allies should insist upon the execution of the clause in the treaty relating to the accused Germans. The impression is strong in official French quarters, it was declared, that the Germans are disposed to make use of every possible pretext to avoid the execution of not only this but other clauses of the treaty and that if the allies gave way on this point it would be considered in Berlin as a precedent on which the Germans would demand further modifications.

List to Be Sent to Berlin
It was pointed out that, even in the absence of the head German peace delegation, Baron Von Lersner, and the charge d'affaires (Dr. Wilhelm Mayer, who returned to Berlin last week, northward, he was relieved by Kurt Von Lersner) it would be a simple matter to have the list of the accused presented in Berlin by one of the allied governments.

While Baron Von Lersner gave out nothing but the signed statement in which he declared his resignation, for resigning and refusing to transmit the list, the impression among observers in Paris is that he is acting on his personal initiative, not reflecting the decision of his government and not committing it to any specific course.

Allies Want 596 Germans
Extradition of 596 Germans accused of violations of the laws of war is demanded in the list. Kurt Von Lersner, by Paul Dutasta, secretary of the peace conference last night.

England demands 37 for trial, France and Belgium 34 each, Italy 29, Poland 57, Rumania 41, and Serbia (Continued on page 5.)

HOLLAND IS URGED TO ENTER LEAGUE

(By Associated Press)
The Hague, Feb. 4.—Holland should enter the league of nations, says a report from a committee appointed by the second chamber of the dutch parliamentary to examine the league covenant and draft a bill providing for Holland's adhesion to the organization.

Belgium and Holland would lose part of her secular liberty in joining the league, says the report, this objection is more counterbalanced by the fact that if she refused to join, she may be isolated and excluded from the social life of other countries. A small minority of the committee opposes the entry of Holland, holding the league is formed by "imperialistic powers" includes a large part of Europe and Asia and contains "the germs of future wars."

Two clauses resolutions, both of them designed to liberalize the senate's veto power, were before the senate. One by Senator Kellogg, republican, Minnesota, would automatically limit debate to one hour for each senator after any measure had been under consideration for three days or under debate for six hours. The other by Senator Curtis, republican, Kansas, would empower a majority to fix a time for voting after a measure had been considered five days or debated ten hours.

Where Vicks Began

The Drug Store in which O. Henry Spent His Boyhood

This is the drug store in Greensboro, N. C., purchased by Mr. Lunsford Richardson in 1888 from Dr. Porter. Dr. Porter was the uncle of "W.B." Porter, who, under the nom-de-plume of O. Henry, became America's greatest short story writer. O. Henry practically grew up in this store and learned here the profession of pharmacy.

It was during his years behind the prescription counter of this drug store that Mr. Richardson worked out the formula for Vicks.

Directions for the Use of Vicks

VICK'S VapoRub comes in salve form. When applied to the body its action is two-fold.

1st.—INTERNAL. The heat of the body releases the ingredients in the form of vapors. These vapors are inhaled with each breath, carrying the medication through the air passages to the lungs.

2nd.—EXTERNAL. In addition, Vicks is absorbed thru and stimulates the skin, attracting the blood to the surface and aiding the vapors inhaled to relieve the congestion.

For Deep Chest Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Coughs, Hoarseness

For severe cases, hot, wet towels should be applied over the throat and chest to open the pores of the skin. Then Vicks should be rubbed well in, spread on thickly and covered with two thicknesses of hot, flannel cloths. The clothing should be left loose around the neck and the bed clothes arranged in the form of a funnel, so that the vapors arising may be freely inhaled.

For Head Colds, Asthma, Catarrh, Hay Fever, Whooping Cough

For these troubles, Vicks can be used as for chest colds or can be melted in a spoon and the vapors inhaled, or a little applied up the nostrils and snuffed back into the air passages.

For Spasmodic Croup and Children's Colds

Vicks is particularly recommended for children's colds, since it is externally applied and can, therefore, be used often and freely with perfect safety. For spasmodic croup, rub Vicks over the throat and chest until the difficult breathing is relieved; then spread on thickly and cover with a hot flannel cloth. An application at bedtime usually prevents a night attack of croup.

For Use as a Liniment, Poultice or Plaster

On account of its penetrative and rubefacient effect on the skin, Vicks has been found excellent for many minor ailments, such as Bites, Boils, Burns, Bruises, Cuts, Frost bite, Itchings, Muscular Soreness, Poison oak, Sunburn, Headache.

Vicks Is Not Meant to Replace the Physician

At the first symptoms of a serious illness, such as pneumonia, a physician should always be called.

Many other troubles, such as chronic catarrh or continued headache, call for the diagnosis of a good doctor. Vicks is simply an emergency remedy, which can be kept in the home ready for instant use and which can be used freely, with perfect safety, on the youngest member of the family.

How the Use of this External Treatment for Cold Troubles Has Grown

MORE than a score of years ago, Lunsford Richardson, a druggist in a little North Carolina town, was trying to find a new way to treat spasmodic croup and colds. He had been trying to find it for years—he needed such a treatment in his own home—he knew that epicac and internal medicines disturbed the delicate digestions of children—that the only way to get medication directly to the air passages and lungs was in vapor form. So he was searching for an effective vapor treatment which would be economical, convenient, and which could be used without the necessity of closing up the sick room and thus excluding the fresh air, so important in the treatment of colds.

At last, this druggist found a process by which he could combine in salve form the standard, time-tested remedies—Camphor, Menthol, Eucalyptus, Thymol and Turpentine—with other volatile oils so that when this salve was spread over the throat and chest the ingredients would be vaporized by the body heat. These vapors, inhaled with each breath all night long, carried the medication directly to the parts affected and at the same time the salve was absorbed thru and stimulated the skin, aiding the vapors inhaled to relieve the congestion. This product was named Vick's VapoRub.

Now over 17 Million Jars are used yearly

Vicks was found to be good for a great many troubles besides spasmodic croup, and as time went on, its sale increased county by county and state by state, until now over 17 million jars are used each year—almost one jar for every family in the United States. And this in spite of the fact that Vicks is still a new form of treatment to many people in the North and far West.

The best testimony to the value of Vicks is the increasing number of families who, each year, are converted to the use of this real "Little Bodyguard in the Home."

Here is the record of the number of jars used annually for the last few years:

1910	347,748 Jars
1911	523,152 Jars
1912	1,027,068 Jars
1913	1,357,598 Jars
1914	1,462,330 Jars
1915	2,418,213 Jars
1916	4,302,764 Jars
1917	6,798,511 Jars
1918	17,377,408 Jars

THE FARMERS ARE RIGHT.

"This is the best country the sun shines on. Its government is the best in the world and a man who would injure or destroy it is unfit to live under the protection of its flag."

That was the conclusion of a conference of seven national farm organizations in a memorial to congress. As a declaration of faith it cannot be beaten. It is good Americanism. It is absolutely true. But it does not mean that there is not work for Americans to do; that we can or should be satisfied with existing conditions. It is not "standpatism." In truth there is no such thing as "standpatism" in a going concern, and the United States is a going concern. The farmers are not satisfied. But they recognize that the causes of their dissatisfaction are remediable through ordinary processes. There is nothing fundamentally wrong, yet. But we must be on our guard lest the enthusiasm of unwise theorists upset the foundations on which the fathers build and which have been the bases of our security and prosperity since the birth of this nation.

The farmers truly say: "The frequent assertion that the war has brought fundamental economic and industrial changes and that we are born into a new world is without foundation. 'The same old standards and economic laws will continue to prevail.' Which is not to say that the farmers are resistant to change; that they are not progressive. They realize the necessity for readjustments as civilization moves forward, but they are opposed to the use of nostrums where specifics are clearly indicated. Our form of government has stood every test to which it has been subjected in war and peace; the farmers still place their trust in it. They set an impressive example of Americanism. Let agitators against our government and supine officials truckling to the exponents of privilege, old or new style, take warning that the sentiment of the great American public which must be reckoned with have been truly set forth by the farmers who are of the very marrow of Americanism."

PERU LOOKING TO THE LEAGUE.

If the council of the league of nations consents to take up Peru's claim to certain territory won from her by Chile over a score of years ago it will set a precedent in mediocrity without, we may believe, making any contribution to the peace and good order of the world. Peru has nothing to lose by appealing to the league council. Chile has the provinces of Tacna and Arica and does not propose to give them up, apparently. If she does not agree to submit the question of her right to them, would any good end be accomplished by a decision depriving her of the provinces? By the employment of force the league might restore Tacna and Arica to Peru but would the satisfaction which that country would feel be a gain when the price of it would be the dissatisfaction of Chile, which might at any time burst into angry flame?

If Chile is willing to submit the case to arbitrations, well and good. But the league of nations offers no better medium for securing a just decision than has been available to these disputants all along. There are throughout the world so many cases somewhat similar that if they were all to be submitted to the league for adjudication the recasting of national boundaries would be interminable. Settlement was supposed to be the object of the league's being, but settlement must be the outlook if such disputes as that between Chile and Peru are to engage its attention. Whatever the merits of Peru's claim, the longer the existing status is maintained the better will relationships between the two countries become, while whatever decision might be rendered the old sore would be reopened and might become malignant.

THE MAGNETISM OF NOVELTY.

With the world agog with new inventions, new diseases, new governments, new aspirations, new philosophy, new dilettantism and new quackery, it is natural that there should arise two clearly defined forces of opinion. On the one hand are those who welcome each passing fad or fancy with the eagerness of untested excitability. On the other hand are those who confound novelty and heresy. Between them is the stable body of citizens who can be stampeded neither by enthusiasm nor panic.

The extremist seldom is an important contributor to progress. He who holds every new lam as a panacea and he who condemns the progressive suggestion because it is untried are alike at fault. Pope voiced the happy medium that should be the goal of serious-minded men: In words, as fashions, the same rule will hold, Alike fantastic if too new or old; Be not the first by which the new are tried, Nor yet the last to lay the old aside.

There is more to be lost by closing the mind to original suggestions than by giving them opportunity to prove themselves. That which is fallacious cannot stand the test. Whether in matters of politics, sociology, international relations, religion, economics or in other activities—and all are today seething with theory—it is well to go slow, but with eyes and ears open for the things worth while.

THE OTHER FELLOW.

If we were in the other fellow's place, If we knew all that troubles him each day, If we could solve the riddle of his face And see the many pitfalls in his way, Perhaps we, too, would stand and cry aloud And shudder at the jeering of the crowd.

How sorely tempted is the sinner here Only the sinner well and truly knows; What buds of hope have blighted year by year, Leaving decay where should have bloomed a rose, None but the broken toiler here can tell, Yet, in his place, would we have done as well?

If we were standing where the failure stands, And knew the disappointments he had faced, Had had our life's work crumble in our hands, Or, being weak, had sinned and been disgraced, Perhaps we, too, would shuffle down the street And lie or steal for something warm to eat.

Better than sneers is pity for the lost, Few men by choice upon life's rocks are wrecked, They that have failed, and now must pay the cost, Once hoped to walk the world with heads erect, And we, perhaps, would stretch our hands in aid, Against such odds no better would have played.

Lure of Antarctic

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN, Director

Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau,

Washington, D. C.

Washington, Feb. 4.—Now that the war is over, men are dreaming of turning their eyes toward the last great unexplored wilderness of the world, and the most terrible of them all—the antarctic. The British commander of the British imperial antarctic expedition, has announced that one feature of the five-year expedition which is to start next June will be a dash at the south pole by airplane.

Of course, the south pole has already been reached. This is not accessible, of all places on earth was reached first by Amundsen, who got there and back in safety, and in the same year by Scott, who got his goal and then died with his companions of cold and starvation on the way back, leaving a journal which was later covered with the ice.

Challenges the Courageous. To the average man whose chief object in life is to make himself as comfortable as possible, it might seem that the explorers would be satisfied to leave the antarctic alone. But to the hardy and courageous souls who delight in explorations the antarctic is still a challenging reality.

Just begun. Geographers still differ as to whether it is one great continent or two of them, or a number of islands. And despite the many expeditions which have gone there and the number of brave men who have died there, the things about the south polar region remain to be studied. Problems not only in geography, but in geology, meteorology, magnetism and meteorology remain to be solved, and the life of the frozen southern seas has not been adequately studied.

The south polar regions present a much more difficult problem to human courage and ingenuity than does the arctic.

Warnings about the north pole come much more than they do about the south pole, so that there is a warm summer and a hot summer in the north at a latitude which in the south is bitterly cold all the year around. There is practically no animal life in the north.

Besides this the great southern blizzard is a more deadly thing than the north has to show. Every explorer who goes into the antarctic practically gambles on the blizzard and his life as the stake.

"Given fairly decent weather and reasonable luck I am convinced that we will get back to our base," says Dr. Cope.

Practures Head on Ice. That is what Scott said. But he got neither the decent weather nor the luck. One of his men fell on the ice and suffered a fracture of the skull from which he never recovered. He became ill and soon saw that he was a burden to the party. He walked out of the tent one night and never came back. The rest pushed on a little farther and then with the blizzard and their luck still against them, and their food and strength going down rapidly to do.

The story of the antarctic is full of examples of heroism like that, and so is the story of the arctic. Explorations of the arctic have cost down their lives for each other, persisting in the face of difficulties that seemed insurmountable. The explorations of the arctic are all stranger than fiction, and yet they are all fact. They are the most thoroughgoing and the most heroic of all the adventures of man.

The Gazette maintains an information bureau at Washington, D. C., under the direction of Frederic J. Haskin. Questions will be answered on any subject. Those desiring information may write a letter to the Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau, Washington, D. C., and enclose a stamp. The letter will be answered by the bureau.

Q. Did the value of farm products show an increase last year over that of the previous year? A. A.

A. The Department of Agriculture says that 1919 was the most prosperous year in the history of American farming. The estimated value of last year's crops of wheat, corn and other products was placed at $24,982,000,000, an increase of $2,500,000,000 over 1918. This farm income represents an annual income of nearly $4,000 for each of the 6,000,000 farms in the United States. It is about equal to the sum in the United States to engage in the World war, and about five times as great as the amount it will cost to run the government during the next fiscal year.

Q. How many submarines did the United States have in operation during the World War? A. O. E.

A. The United States had 46 submarines during the recent war.

Q. When did granulated sugar first come into use? T. J. A.

A. The Bureau of Plant Industry says that granulated sugar, as we now know it commercially, first began to replace the use of the loaf sugar. Before that time it was used only to a small extent.

Q. Can a citizen of the United States become and for being a communist? J. Q. S.

A. The naturalization bureau says that a citizen of the United States cannot become a communist. Communists who are not citizens of the country are subject to deportation for their activities against the government.

Q. For import purposes, is canned whole held to be meat or fish? M. E.

A. The Bureau of Markets says that it was recently decided that canned whole meat is not "meat" within the meaning of the tariff act which admits free of duty meats of all kinds. The United States Board of Appraisers classifies the flesh of whale as "fish" in the package, not specially provided for. On this class of goods a duty of 15 percent ad valorem is levied.

Q. For partners in bridge, when two cards of equal face value are cut, how do they rank? W. W.

A. When two cards of the same face value are drawn in cutting for partners or for the deal, the highest suit in bidding is the lowest in cutting. For example, spades are highest in bidding but lowest in computing the winner of the cut. In cutting the ace is low.

Q. What noise can be heard the farthest, artillery or thunder? E. B. C.

A. The greatest distance at which thunder has been heard is 14.1 miles, but it is not generally heard at a greater distance than nine miles. In the recent war the shell and bomb explosions, and the noise of the 13-inch guns of the Germans and the allies in France, were heard in the eastern part of England, at distances up to 100 miles.

Q. Where is the wettest place on earth? P. A. K.

A. Cherrapongee, in southwestern Assam, India, is the wettest place in the world. The annual rainfall there has reached 295 inches.

Q. What percentage of the inhabitants of the United States live to be 100 years of age? C. H. C.

A. The number of centenarians reported in this country in 1910 was equal to four for each 100,000 of the total population. The corresponding ration in 1850 was 11.

Thousands Respond to Government Plea in H. C. L. Attack

Grain Corporation Sale of High Grade, Low Priced Flour Proves Success

Home cooks by the thousands are reporting unqualified success and satisfaction in their use of government flour which is being offered by dealers throughout the country, co-operating with the Government in combating extravagance and high living costs.

The economical housewife has grasped the opportunity to save 20 to 40 per cent in buying this pure wheat flour, and millers are beginning to produce it in competition with the Government.

In many communities retailers' stocks have been depleted as fast as shipments were received. A car shortage has interfered materially with the distribution of the flour, but it is now available to every retailer in the country who is willing to co-operate with the Government and save money for his customers.

Roosevelt's View of Kings Is Told in "Longest Letter"

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
New York, (By Mail).—Colonel Roosevelt's "longest letter," a 25,000 word personal account of his trip from Khartoum to London, and the adventures which he described by his biographer, Joseph Bucklin Bishop, as a "human document of exceptional character," appeared in the February issue of Scribner's magazine, published today.

"Soon after returning from the president's trip to Africa on a hunting trip. He had arranged before his departure for several formal addresses, which he was to make in Germany, England, France, and Norway on his return. When he reached Khartoum in March 1910, on his way home, he yielded to urgent appeals and made two addresses on Egyptian affairs, one at Khartoum and the other at Cairo, which aroused much controversy and led later to a speech on the same subject, also by urgent request, at the Guild hall in London.

"From Khartoum he went to Rome, Vienna, Budapest, Paris, Brussels, The Hague, Copenhagen, Christiania, Stockholm, Berlin, and then to London. At the close of his tour he paid a long visit to his long-time correspondent and friend, Sir George Otto Trevelyan, at his estate at Watlington, Stratford-on-Avon. During the visit his narrative of his experiences in Egypt and Europe so strongly impressed Sir George that he urged him most earnestly to put it in writing. This Roosevelt did the following year, in the form of a letter to Trevelyan, under date of October 1, 1911."

"The former president, in the misadventure, made 'frank and searching comments upon the characteristics and personalities of kings, emperors, and other personages with whom he came in contact' and in the opening paragraph requested that it should not be made public until long after all of us who are now alive are dead." Trevelyan, in authorizing its publication, said: 'I do not hesitate to say that it should be published, and the sooner the better. The world would be much the richer for it. The times are such that the man interest and solid value of this wonderful paper would be great indeed now.'

"The Colonel drew an intimate picture of British rulers and their reigns, and on the whole declared that the task of 'superimposing the twentieth century upon the seventh' was a

"Ireland's Struggle Hopeless While Rivals Vie," Says Irish Poet

New York.—Ireland in her struggle toward nationalization presents the tragic perspective of three antagonistic forces, each arrayed against the others, and among which there is no common ground for reconciliation.

"There are three parties, or forces, in Ireland, first, the old system, still more or less resisting nationalization and holding out for a separation of Ulster from the rest of the country. This party is headed by Sir Edward Carson and is known as the 'Extreme Right.' The second group may be called 'The Center,' headed by Sir Thomas Plunkett and Stephen Gwynne, who are holding out for dominion home rule, or home rule within the empire, and the third party, or 'Extreme Left,' is the Sinn Féin organization, headed by Arthur Griffiths and John O'Neill, who wish nothing short of complete separation and an independent government."

"The Plunkett group backs an idea that, I believe, will never be accepted. The Sinn Féin, however, present a program that makes an irresistible appeal to the imagination. Therein lies the strength of that organization. It understands the psychology of the Irish people thoroughly."

Sinn Féin Leads Gaelic Revival
"The Sinn Féin is in the majority and is taking a leading part in the present Gaelic revival. Under its influence multitudes are studying the Irish language and there is pronounced movement toward the revival of the old customs; in fact Irish folklore is making a deep appeal to the people. It cannot be said that the Sinn Féin has had no statement to make on what has been said by the other parties. It was a matter for the politicians."

Asked to state his views with regard to the sale of Irish bonds in this country, Mr. Yeats said that he had no statement to make on what had been said by the other parties. It was a matter for the politicians.

against them. The two men are products of wholly different environments, although both were born in the middle west. Cummings' birthplace is Chicago, while Yeats' was from the small town of Sullivan, Ind., where he makes his home.

They entered politics at about the same time, although Cummings is nine years older than Yeats. He will be 50 next April, but does not look it. Soon after he graduated in the law, Cummings went to Stamford, Conn., to begin practice, and he has lived there ever since. A little over 20 years ago he began to take an active interest in politics and in 1900 was elected mayor of Stamford. Just about the same time Yeats was getting into politics in Indiana.

Cummings, who has been a conspicuous figure in democratic politics in Connecticut for a long time, has been candidate on several occasions for public office. He has run for congress and the United States senate, in addition to having been mayor of his city and a member of the republican organization, from precinct committeeman up to national chairman. Both men have made a success at the law and both are effective public speakers of widely different types. Cummings has more grace and finish, Yeats a more incisive and earnest method. The democratic chairman can see the light as well as the dark side, while the republican antagonist always appears to see things only in their serious aspect.

HOMER S. CUMMINGS

Homer S. Cummings, chairman of the democratic national committee, and Richard Carle, the actor, would pass very well for twin brothers. They are both of the same age, Mr. Cummings being the elder by a year. The physical resemblance is not only as to head and face, but also to height and build. Mr. Cummings is quite bald, wears nose glasses, has an abundant supply of dry humor and can be amusing without cracking a smile, in fact of which things are characteristic of Mr. Cummings. He also possesses a fluency of speech somewhat similar to that of the actor. All this is by way of enabling people who have never seen the democratic chairman to form a fairly good picture of him, assuming that they have seen Mr. Carle some time or other, which is probable.

Cummings rarely resists the temptation to draw upon his own life when he speaks of the republican party. The particular object of his shafts at this time is the offer of $10,000 in prize for republicans under the age of 25 who submit the best platform suggestions. None but the adolescent, says Cummings, would undertake the task of trying to write a republican platform. He holds that it will require all the daring and experience of a rooster to get away with the job. As for republican efforts to reach a set of policies in congress, according to Cummings, "it is a reasonable central idea, rather than a mere process."

He likes to have a little fun with the opposition and in that respect he is a very different person from Mr. Yeats, the republican national chairman. He is always serious. He does not joke about the democrats. He may denounce them, but it never occurs to him to turn the laugh

PACKED HOUSES EXPECTED TO SEE BIG LAKOTA SHOW

That packed houses will see the "Lakota Follies" at the Myers theatre Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of next week, and that standing room will be at a premium, is the belief today, based upon interest displayed throughout the city. Members of the club are making free predictions that the show will be the greatest and best home talent entertainment ever given in the city.

Roy Cummings, chairman of the house committee, announced that everything is ready for opening the seat sale at the box office at the theatre at 9 o'clock Friday morning. With a view to eliminating any favoritism it has been decided to limit the sale to the box office only. Members will procure their tickets the same as all others. The sale of "First come, first served" has been promulgated by the seat sale committee.

With three complete rehearsals scheduled for the next five days, Director Mort Rhinns, general chairman, hope to have the production ready for a perfect performance at the opening Tuesday night. The order has been issued to every member of the club to be on hand for rehearsal in Terpsichorean hall at 7:30 o'clock.

A pretty tame lamb was used by Mae Murray, who represented a fiery, untamed daughter of the mountains, in the scenes of "What Am I Bid," a secret service man looking for moonshiners was the means of her being civilized.

A Red Cross film taken in France on Armistice day and another view showing scenes at a Red Cross hospital were Sunday pictures. The play was Owen Moore in "Pleasantly Jim," which shows the good looking hero in all kinds of scrapes, and then trying to escape his reputation by coming to America. Here he finds his father trying to escape a duke's doom by working as butler in the household of his hosts. A fat boy who wants to be kidnapped, a runaway featuring Zena Keefe is the young woman who appeals to his sense of reason to behave himself, and works his reformation.

The Sunday play at the Majestic was Gladys Brockway in "Chasing Rainbows." She is a waitress in a railroad eating house, and becomes prejudiced against the men because she found her fiancé was a married man with a child. She goes off to a little restaurant in the desert and finds her faith in mankind restored, after she saves a man's life. Some good scenery and stirring western scenes are shown.

Bryant Washburn was the Wednesday offering in "All's Wrong," which was funny to get by some time, having been thinking part in which his facial expressions had full play. "The Taylor Holmes picture," "Nothing But the Truth," pleased large audiences at the Apollo the first of the week. It concerns a bet made by the hero that he would answer all questions by speaking the truth for a week. He gets himself into all kinds of difficulties as well as the other parties to the contract and they all have harrowing experiences. He wins the bet, and the girl as well, although he was put in a lunatic asylum, and arrested as a burglar in the process. Slides advertising the Armistice drive are being shown at this theatre.

ETHER HIGHBALL NOW "VERBOTEN" IN MAINE

Lewiston, Maine.—"Have an ether highball" is the newest invitation among Maine "wets." The ether highball is a mixture of ether and alcohol—about one part ether and two parts alcohol. Those who have experimented with it assert that it has an "elevating" effect.

While the stuff is taken as mixed, many prefer to heat the mixture to a temperature where the ether evaporates, after which the alcohol is diluted with water on a 50-50 basis, thereby becoming the good old-time "split" of Maine fame.

This concoction is put up in ounce and a half and three ounce bottles under the name "Inimitable," which enabled it to get by some time, but now the officers have begun seizing the stuff and the courts to condemn it as an intoxicant.

WIDOW OF DEAD SKIPPER BRINGS SCHOONER TO PORT

Mobile, Ala.—Under command of the widow of the skipper who died at sea the schooner Jean L. Somerville made port here. The Somerville was spoken in the Gulf by a United States Fruit company steamship, which reported that Captain W. P. Oram was dead and the vessel adrift without a navigator.

Sighted later by the Shipping Board steamship Moosehauc, the schooner was towed to Pensacola and from there brought here, completing her voyage from Las Palmas, "split" of Maine fame.

THE HIGH COST OF SICKNESS—V How to Deal With Cough

It is a great mistake to take medicine for a cough. Medicine which stops a cough is accountable for many diseases. A child develops or many diseases, or "cold in the head." The child coughs a great deal, especially at night, grows quite feverish, looks to every one for all the world like pneumonia or something. Feed that child most any store cough medicine; the inevitable result, pneumonia, diphtheria, croup, whooping cough, chloroform or whatnot, dries the child's senses; the child falls, then, to cough up secretion; the infection travels downward, presently the lungs have converted a slight illness into a serious bronchitis or pneumonia.

A child develops and elephant cough. Stops at the store and lets the druggist's devil advise him what is best for it. Takes the dose. Cough knocked out after a few days. Medicine all gone. Cough now returns. What will he do—try another bottle of the dose, or go to bed and send for the doctor? Well, you never can tell what he will do. It's his cough. If the old women were genuine grandmothers they would be ashamed to send Johnny to the store for a cough medicine. They would prepare medicine at home, as real grandmothers have always done. This home made cough medicine may not be a sure-fire cure-all, such as the druggist's product purports to be. But we can say this for it: a grandmother's cough medicine—it never does any harm.

Any one who knows anything of the action of drugs, he will be ashamed to send Johnny to the store for a cough medicine. He knows perfectly well that no drug or combination of drugs ever cures a disease of which cough is a symptom, and that no drug or combination of drugs ever "breaks up a cold."

I do not offer a new cough cure. I am giving here the formula of a harmless remedy which often softens, loosens and thereby causes a cough, from any acute respiratory infection (including influenza) to subside, and will not do any harm even if a child swallows the whole of the medicine by mistake:

Sodium Citrate.....1 ounce
Glycerin.....1 ounce
Lemon juice of one lemon
Oil of peppermint.....4 drops
Whole Bessie's.....1 teaspoonful
Water.....1 pint
Steep (do not boil) the Bessie's in the water for five minutes. Strain, add the other ingredients. Give the adult a teaspoonful.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson
In Care of the Gazette

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Is it proper for a lady upon receiving an introduction to a gentleman to shake hands? J. O. S.

Either way is correct. The shake hands is a little more cordial, and do not start and hesitate. If you hold out your hand wait until the man shakes it. So often the woman takes the initiative and the man is embarrassed and embarrassed is caused.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young married woman and am certainly a great deal of fun. I do not know the proper ideas of entertaining. I do very little of it.

In giving a little afternoon tea I have planned a small program also. When do I serve the tea, before or after the program, or while the program is being given? My guests, I have no help or servants?

Tea should be served after the program. Go to the door yourself to greet your guests. Then tell them where to put their wraps. Do not let them put their wraps in the first room at the head of the stairs. Do not give too much thought to the correct way of doing things. Be certain as you yourself want to. Originality is always a treat. But whatever you do, keep the attitude of perfect confidence that your guests will think it all right. Never apologize. You may find helpful reading matter at the library. Tell the librarian what you want and she will help you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: If a boy has been invited to a party and the girl he keeps coming to the party, should he attend the party? F. D.

Circumstances would decide such a case. If the boy is very young, he is foolish to have only one girl and therefore should not stay away from the party.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Would it be proper for a girl to have a school between the ages of fourteen and sixteen to go to a class party about a quarter of a mile from town? We haven't any way of going except to walk.

It would be all right to attend if one of the teachers chaperones. "Three Decided." All the girls must lack pride. Of course it is all right for the young man to have three girl friends, but he should not make love to all three and cheapen himself by permitting it.

She Married an Average Man

By ZOE BECKLEY.

A wife can experience few uglier shocks than to plan to repair a quarrel with her husband—and be denied the chance. The morning after a wild noon, my relation against going to the country to live. I awoke from an exhausting dream-haunted sleep to find myself alone in the apartment. A faded sense of calamity numbed me. On the living room table lay a penciled note: "It will be easier for us both," it read. "If I go without you, my anger has passed, Ann, but the conviction remains that it would be suicidal for us to try to go on together."

"You have shown me a new side of your nature. You call it a natural and legitimate desire to 'know life' and I call it selfishness. You do not know self-control. What you consider sensitiveness to impressions, I call mere inattention and bad timing has inoculated you with the desire for a career. Marriage and a quiet life are not good enough for you."

"Well—so be it. I urge you no further to travel my plodding path. When we were first married, two years ago you dwelt much on 'comradeship,' 'understanding,' 'sympathy' and 'mutual helpfulness' in gaining the things that count. But now, the time we came to New York your idea of 'things that count' were all things outside of home. You wanted adventure, life, work, excitement, color, gay friends, freedom. I did not."

"I may have been at fault in many things, and for these failures I am profoundly sorry. But at least I have kept faithful to the 'serious things'—the things that count. You wish to 'know life'—I am content to work. We do not have similar points of view, you and I. Our natures are totally different, or have grown apart in the environment of a great city like New York. That is the worst of marriages; one cannot tell how the other is going to secured and I shall be comfortable there. My duties at the works will occupy me thoroughly. The sober quality of my mind which you find so irksome will stand me in good stead now. You may believe it or not, Ann, but I am sorry for you. I do not think you know what you want. I have taken a bag. When convenient you can send a trunk along with the best of my things. Get rid of the others. Good-by, and believe that I am grieved to the core at the failure of our marriage. J. S."

I read and reread this characteristic letter, getting hot and cold by turns. My heart grew stony at his words, "grass selfishness." That is unjust. My conscience tells me I have never been really selfish and my outburst the other night over living in the country. And I was ready to give in about that, too, when I came to my senses. But now it is too late. Jim has made giving in impossible.

I am too nerve exhausted to struggle with the rest of Jim's letter. If people are determined to go over to Athena's and talk things out with her. (To be continued.)

EMBROIDERY TRIMS FROCK FOR SPRING

By ELOISE.

The Daily Novelette

THE FIRST NIGHT.

As told in the title, it was Oswald Skiffins, first opera, but ninety-third attempt.

The young operawrite was very nervous, for there was no way of telling from the attitude of the audience how they felt about it.

Just as the curtain, artistically decorated with a 23 by 49 painting of a Colonial dancing scene in a ball-room interior, beneath which was printed in handsome gilt letters edged with black "Go to Elford for the latest in fashion—Madame X or Walt—331 Tindolwood Avenue," fell on the third and last scene of the first and last act, 13 minutes after midnight.

For the air was rife with that longer for yet!

Everybody was shouting it! The roof rang with it. The chandelier shimmered with it.

Even the most critical, operatic critics were joining in the general demand. Oswald Skiffins' shirtfront bowed over with heart-bumps of joy, pent-up emotion.

Author! Author! Author! The cures were operative.

With a self-satisfied and grateful smile, Oswald Skiffins stepped before the curtain at 16 minutes after 12.

At 17 minutes after, he was a sight. Red, ripe tomato juice ran down his boiled shirt front, the skins clinging to his hair, nose and ears. The operatic critics were staring the stage with hot storage vegetables.

Four days later Oswald Skiffins received a bill for $19.91, the cost of cleaning the stains from the curtain and the stage.

Author! Bob-h-h-h-h!

YOUNG WOMAN DIES
IN LIMERICK RIOT

Limerick, Feb. 4.—Two persons are dead as a result of the rioting here Monday night, when demonstrators clashed with an armed military patrol. Richard Weyer, a republican, was killed during the disturbance and Lena Johnson, a young woman who was wounded by a shot, died yesterday.

The authorities withdrew the military patrols last night, confining the troops to their barracks. The riotous picture theaters were closed and in some of the Catholic churches the people were advised to keep off the streets.

Father Charged with Beating Child to Death

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Rhineland, Feb. 4.—A warrant was issued late yesterday by District Attorney A. J. O'Melia, for the arrest of Stanley Blomski for the murder of his six-year-old son, at the Blomski home in Sugar Camp.

The child died last week, and an investigation revealed that injury due to a severe beating was the cause. The testimony of the mother of the child yesterday was to the effect that the father had beaten the child many times and more than once had threatened to take his life. She also stated that he had beaten the child when it was only three months old. Blomski admitted beating the child when but three months old but denied injuring it.

RECIPES FOR A DAY

Beef Stew—Take about a pound of beef, preferably neck or some other part that makes nice stew, and cut in pieces several inches across; roll in flour and sear in fryings or sear in meat; when well seared remove meat and put three or four medium sized onions in fat and brown.

Now remove from fire and put meat on top of onions; add as many raw sliced potatoes as you want for four or five persons; also add cabbage and carrots, about three or four carrots, medium sized, and a small head of cabbage, well washed and set in a slow oven, cover and let simmer for several hours.

Letts and Onion Salad—Shred lettuce and put on plates, shred Spanish onion and sprinkle over top, using vinegar, sugar and salt to taste.

Cabbage Salad—(Swiss style)—One good sized head of cabbage cut in fine shreds, one onion cut fine, one tablespoon salt, one-half teaspoon pepper, one tablespoon sugar.

Take a frying pan, put two strips bacon cut in cubes, fry until brown; take off fire, add one cup vinegar which has been reduced with a little water, pour over cabbage; let stand 10 minutes before serving.

TWO GOOD PIES

Cocoanut Custard Pie—For this pie you will need three good sized pies, four tablespoons of sugar, one tablespoon of flour, one teaspoon of vanilla, one pint of milk, and two cups of grated cocoanut.

Remove two egg-whites for the meringue; then beat the remaining yolks and the one whole egg with the sugar and the flour, one and one-half cups cocoanut, the flavoring and the milk. Place in a tin lined with rich pie crust and bake in a moderate oven.

Remove from the oven and when cool cover with a meringue made with the two egg-whites and three tablespoons of sugar. Sprinkle with meringue with the remaining one-half cup of grated cocoanut and brown in a very slow oven.

Apple Pie—One and one-half cups of milk, add one and one-half cups of sugar, one-half cup of lemon and a few grains of salt; stir in three-quarter cup of minute tapioca. Cook over fire in a double boiler until clear, stirring constantly. The mixture will be very thick, as for an ordinary lemon pie.

Stir in one teaspoon (level) of butter, then add the yolks of two well beaten eggs. Stir in lemon juice. Pour into a baked pastry shell, spread on the meringue, made of the whites of the eggs beaten very stiff with two tablespoons of powdered sugar; sprinkle with bits of cocoanut over meringue and brown in a very slow oven until meringue sets watery.

A hot oven makes a meringue pie watery.

Washington—The report of the federal reserve board expressed the belief that a peak in high prices and inflation has been approached if not reached.

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY

It is particularly interesting now that women are doing so many big things to find out just what started them on their successful careers. Was it ambition? Was it necessity? Was it more chance? Or was it something else? In the case of Miss Kate Alexander, reputed to be the best woman insurance agent in the country, it was necessity or misfortune which started her on the road to success in the business world.

Five short years ago Miss Alexander was living in her home town, Paris, Ky., enjoying all the luxuries and comforts provided by her father, a banker. She was a society girl with little thought for the business world. She was graduated from a Washington, D. C., finishing school where she showed little which would help her in any circle but the small society world. Then her family met financial reverses and Miss Alexander set out to "find a job, anything just so it was a job."

She found it in an insurance office and soon became known as the "live wire of soft voice and gentle manner." Today she is rated as the best woman insurance agent in the United States. Her work has broadened until now it is said that her services in 1919 netted her $10,000 in commissions. She has also saved enough now to retire modestly but comfortably. This is what women can do for there are not many men who could retire after only five years of work. Miss Alexander, however, Alexander set out to "find a job, anything just so it was a job."

London Banks to Close—The London banks will close today for the first time since the outbreak of the war.

Woman bank clerks in London have enlisted public interest and sympathy by their organized resistance to the dismissal notices lately sent to thousands of them. The protest against summary dismissal has proved so strong that many of the banks are yielding to it.

Some of them have tried to make amends by promising to retain all the women clerks now in their employ and to allow them a bonus of two months' pay for those in service for one year. One bank has decided to allow women up to the age of 30 to complete for positions on the permanent staff and to pay them at the rate for men.

Miss Evans, secretary of the Association of Women Clerks and Secretaries, which conducted the campaign of resistance, says some of the banks which were stricter in their purpose to dispense with women

Manitowoc Teachers Given Increase for Rest of Year

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Manitowoc, Feb. 4.—An increase in pay for school teachers receiving less than $2,000 per year has been granted by the school board of this city, for the remaining five months of the school year. The increase will be on the basis of $150 per year for high school teachers and $100 for grade teachers, making it approximately $30 and $20 per month respectively. With this increase it is estimated that the teachers will receive a 44 percent increase in the last three years.

Bill Would Make Marriage After Childbirth Legitimate

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Regina, Sask. (By Mail).—A bill before the Saskatchewan assembly, which has received its second reading, would provide legitimacy of all children of couples who were married after the children were born. The bill, in its present form, would have legitimacy date back to birth, except in cases where vested rights have accrued to others.

Swift & Company was a favorite topic of conversation last year.

Committees investigated it, commissions attacked it, law makers threatened it, many condemned it.

Presently people began to think about it; began to realize that Swift & Company was performing a necessary service in a big, efficient way; began to wonder whether it could be done as well in any other way.

Read what Swift & Company did last year, and what it meant to you, in the Swift & Company Year Book, just issued.

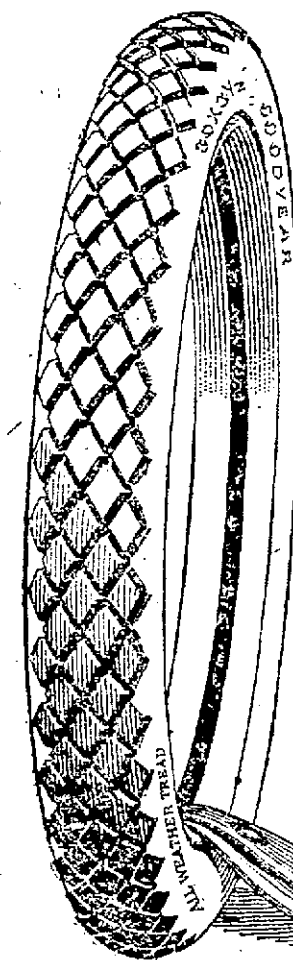

It's a fascinating narrative—simple facts in simple words. There is one ready for you. Send for it.

Equip Your Small Car With Goodyear Tires

If you own a Ford, Chevrolet, Dort, Maxwell or any other car using 30x3, 30x3 1/2, or 31x4-inch tires, you can well take advantage of the high relative value built into all Goodyear Tires.

You can well do so because you can secure in the small Goodyear Tires the results of such skill and care as have made Goodyear Tires the preferred equipment on the highest-priced automobiles of the day.

You can well do so because these small Goodyear Tires are easy to obtain, being produced at the rate of 20,000 a day, and because their first cost usually is as low or lower than that of other tires in the same types and sizes.

Go to the nearest Goodyear Service Station Dealer for these tires, and for Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes. He supplies many other local owners of small cars.

JANESVILLE PLAYS RETURN WITH FORT

Janesville high school is getting set to battle Fort Madison on the local court Friday. The blues handed the Fort team a defeat at the foreign court two weeks ago. Since then the local lads continued their winnings, and are in better condition with considerably more confidence than at any time this season. Playing the two men with Tunstead, center, form the backbone of the quintet. Newman is showing up well at the guard position, and for high school honors in the interscholastic field. Already other schools watch their work closely. The only high school team that appears to be in the class in this vicinity this year is Monroe, which is playing a style that is overwhelming all-comers.

Fort is playing an all-star game at running guard. Fager, at forward and captain of the five, is clever at basket shooting and a bugaboo to the guards. The team has a strong substitute.

BIG LEAGUE CLUES SELECT NEW CAMPS

New York, Feb. 3.—New training quarters have been selected by a majority of the major league baseball clubs as the scene of their spring conditioning, prior to the annual battle for the pennants. Ten of the sixteen teams, including the Philadelphia Athletics and the St. Louis Nationals, which trained at home in 1919, have decided to seek new fields for their work-outs. The remaining six will return to the balm diamonds where they prepared a year ago.

As has been the case for several years, the state of Florida still leads as a popular choice with Texas running a close second. Those two states will act as hosts for eight clubs while Georgia, Louisiana and Arkansas will each accommodate two. California will again be the scene of the spring training of the Chicago Nationals, the Cubs returning to Pasadena where they were satisfactorily located twelve months ago.

EVERYMAN'S DIARY

The other day I got some home-brewed and went to a vaudeville show to recover. But it got worse. And worse. So I decided to go out quickly. By the way, I noticed the building was slowly moving upward, and the pavement, too. Then I realized that the last lap of the stately was held of the ground. By weights. And that it was gently settling. And I decided to settle with it. And just then I saw a man walking under me. And I was struck dumb. And he got there just as the foot of the ladder did. And it hit him. An awful wallop. And when I descended he was in the alley all ready to soak me. And would have but a truck came by. And the two of us and a stranger had to flatten ourselves against the wall. To let it pass. And when it did, the stranger grabbed me by the arm and said: "Accidents like this happen every day. But you can protect your wife and children with liability insurance. And the way the other man was looking at me I thought I would need some. But just then the agent saw the bump on the other man's head. And he grabbed him. And I beat it. But the next day I went down and took out an accident policy. For I'm afraid I may meet that guy with the bump on his head again.

LOOK UP YOURSELF

In glancing over that famous humorous work, the unabridged dictionary, this morning we came across the word adjutant, which touched a chord of memory. This is what we read: Adjutant, Assistant, auxiliary, a staff officer who assists the commander; a carriage-eating East Indian stork. All of which shows what a breadth of demand and knowledge the man who wrote the dictionary had. We thought we knew all about the man whose job it is to see that the Colonel writes "retained, disapproved," on applications to visit relatives, or to transfer to the medical corps if you're not in the line of duty. We had often heard him called a lot of things, some that weren't in the dictionary. But a carriage-eating bird—well, we may have suspected it! But we were never sure before.

PLAN AERIAL DERBY AROUND THE WORLD

New York, Feb. 4.—The Beaumont commission, appointed by the Aero Club and the Aerial League of America, has planned a route from New York to Yokohama, Japan, for the initial stages of the First Aerial Derby Around the World. This event will be in the nature of a touring contest in which any person may participate. The object of the commission is to create a world-wide interest in aeronautics and air travel; the building of safe landing fields and airports; the establishing of controls and appointment of referees to check contestants in and out and to collect data for the establishing of permanent aerial lines throughout the world.

The Derby contestants may use both airplanes and dirigibles for air travel and will be permitted to use ships, railways, automobiles and other means of transportation to make connections between controls, but the greatest and fastest average air mileage will win the master prizes. A long period of time will be allowed for the entire journey after certain zones of travel have been fixed. A contestant may consume all the time allotted to make the full trip; fly from one point to another on one day, continuing at his pleasure, on to the next point his time being officially taken by referees at all starting and stopping points. All contestants will be under the absolute control and direction of the appointed referees, who must be native

LEGION TO OUST 'HONORARY' MEMBERS

Indianapolis, Feb. 4.—In a meeting of officers of the American Legion here on Tuesday it was made public that the rules of the legion bar anyone from holding membership who has not served in the army, navy or marines. This applies to champion heavyweight boxer, Jack Dempsey.

The constitution says "there shall be no form or class of membership except an active membership." It adds that "any person shall be eligible for membership in the American legion who was regularly enlisted, drafted, induced or commissioned, and who served on active duty in the army, navy or marine corps," during the war, provided he was not separated from the service under circumstances amounting to dishonorable discharge and has not subsequently been officially restored to an honorable status.

Officers of the legion say these sections of the constitution not only apply to Dempsey, but to many others.

Edlund made quick work of the second fall, pinning Zoll to the mat in 1 1/2 minutes with a double wrist lock. Zoll's body scissors and wrist lock did for the farmer in the other two falls.

"BABE" RUTH WILL BE 26 NEXT SATURDAY

New York, Feb. 3.—George "Babe" Ruth, world's greatest slugger and the highest priced ball player of all time, will celebrate his twenty-sixth birthday next Saturday. The Yankees' latest acquisition first saw the light of day Feb. 7, 1894, at Baltimore, Md. Six years made a great difference in the life of Ruth. In 1914 he was in a reformatory at Baltimore, to which he had been sent because of his failure to attend school regularly. It was while in the reformatory that Ruth began his career as a ball player.

CHANDLER SIX

Famous For Its Marvelous Motor

Europe Welcomes The Chandler Six

NOW and then you read something about "French style and line" in automobiles, or perhaps it's "the newest English idea." And some folks have gone across to get the newest suggestions.

Europe hasn't built automobiles for five years and Europe is crying for new cars and good cars.

America's style is Europe's style now.

The Chandler Six, popular in many other countries for years but kept out of Europe the past three years because of war-time prohibition of shipments, is welcomed everywhere in Europe now,—welcomed for the excellence of its performance, and quite as much for the beauty of its styles of body.

The Chandler, represented in the British Isles by Messrs. H. G. Burford & Company, Ltd., of London, was exhibited by that old established English automotive house, at the great Olympia Motor Show, and was "quite the sensation of the show," says a London cable.

"Three hundred and seventy Chandlers were sold in two days."

Apparently England is greatly pleased with America's best style in motor cars.

SIDE LIGHTS on the CIRCUS BUSINESS

By D. W. WATT
Former Manager Burr Robbins and Later Treasurer of Adam
Forepaugh Circuses

A few days ago I chanced to be visiting in the corridor of the hotel with an old man who was traveling for a wholesale house in Philadelphia. When I told him that I had spent some time every spring and fall for several years in that city he naturally became curious to know what my business was. When I told him that I had been with the Adam Forepaugh show for several years, in fact up until the time the owner died, the first question he asked me was: "Were you there at the time of the $10,000 beauty contest when the show opened in April 1882?" I said I was. He said that he never would forget Louise Montague, the $10,000 beauty. He was quite a young man at that time and was working for the same house for which he is now traveling.

One evening he took in the show and made up his mind that he would have a visit with the famous beauty if it was possible at all. That he might tell the boys in the store the next day, that he had had a visit with her. He said that he managed to get a visit with her for a few minutes, and she made a great impression on him. He gave him her card which he showed proudly to the boys in the store the next day. While she had a beautiful face, form, and wardrobe, yet it was her disposition that attracted him most.

He did not think at that time that some 38 years later he would have a visit with the man who sold him his ticket that night. Of course, while there were dozens of speculators selling tickets on the outside, he said that he was afraid to buy from them and finally crowded his way to the ticket wagon where it seemed thousands were clamoring for tickets but he knew that if he got his ticket here all would be well. He recollects well that a man made the announcement from the ring in the show that more than 5,000 had been turned away. This was my first season with the big show. I, too, was pleased when they sent me word to close down the wagon, because there was no more room for tickets.

The show came west that season and opened on the lake front in Chicago for two weeks and while we had the show the boys were making money, we never held them after that until the night show of the closing day. It was there that Louise Montague gave a banquet to news-

INDIANS INCREASE: AS MANY NOW AS IN COLUMBUS' DAY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Feb. 2.—Despite popular belief that the civilization forced upon him by the white man means his ultimate extinction, the North American Indian, reviving from a long period of decadence, has shown in recent years that he probably is scarcely less numerous today than when Columbus discovered America. According to this assertion may be to those who have pictured American forests in the discoverer's time as swarming with red men, it is freely advanced by experts of the government's Indian bureau, who maintain that the Indian necessarily formed an exceedingly scanty population which probably at no period materially exceeded the total of 883,702 Indians reported by the bureau for last year.

"The Indian no longer is to be thought of as a dying race," declared Dr. Lawrence W. White, an Indian authority of the bureau. "In support of this statement it is necessary, in the first place, to disabuse the public mind of the tradition handed down by discoverers and early colonists that the American forests in their day swarmed with the dusky figure of the red man. As the Indian neglected agriculture almost completely, his highly improvable that this country, considering its latitude, could have supported more than several hundred thousand of his race."

On the other hand, Dr. White continued, the Indian in the present day, after periods of sharp decrease following as a natural reaction to sudden contact with the civilization of the white man, is seen to be making substantial gains in population.

Pointing to statistics which show an excess of births over deaths of 1,523 in 1916, and almost as great an excess in 1917, normal years which were not affected by the epidemic of influenza, Dr. White declared these figures "fully reflected the generosity of a government that has increased its Indian health appropriations from $40,000 in 1911 to $250,000 in 1917 and subsequent years. They demonstrate, he said, that with the schools, hospitals and other advantages now provided for the Indian, he is tribesman or freed-man, is "not a dying race but rather a flourishing one. Had he been treated as other nations have, he would have been a long time ago."

Bride of Five Days Seeks Her Lost Husband Here

By PEG O'BRIEN
It is a tale of love and loneliness, a youthful bride since Nov. 11, watching, waiting, for the husband who left her on the 15th of the same month to resume work with the Du Pont Engineering company at Flint, Mich. The lost bridegroom is, or was at the time he was married, John Anderson Howard, "mostly called Jack Howard by those who know him," the bride writes. Before leaving the bride at Janesville, where the wedding ceremony was performed, Jack told his wife that the company had finished its work at Flint and he expected to be transferred to La Crosse.

Here's where Janesville creeps into the story. It was Nov. 13, that Mrs. Howard received a postal from Janesville from her husband saying that he was going to work in this city for a few days. He asked her to send him some more clothes, as it was cold here. Then, best of all, he said: "A few days later I will be settled in Janesville and would send for her. The dutiful wife sent the clothes to her husband at once. She has not heard from him since although she has sent many letters, some of them registered and special. All have come back to her unopened."

They Didn't Quarrel
Mrs. Howard is still very young. She believes in mankind in general, and in her husband in particular. In her appeal she says that she and Jack had known each other for a long time and that he had visited with her at the home of her parents in Bowling Green, Ohio many times. In the two years that she and Jack went together they never quarreled. (Quite unusual lovers.) There is only one conclusion which Mrs. Howard can come to, and that is, that her husband has not with him. Something serious must have happened to make Jack forget his bride so soon, or of this the wife is very sure.

For a month Mrs. Howard waited in Michigan at the friend's home, watching each day for a letter. Then, heart sick but still trusting, she returned to her home in Bowling Green, where each day she says the suspense grows more tense.

He's Only Twenty-Eight
He is very tall, she says. He has dark bushy hair, blue eyes and wears nose glasses. When he left Jackson he weighed 176 pounds. He is 28 years old.

If any of you have chanced upon John Anderson Howard in this city, salute him as Jack and remind him of the missus whom he left behind. If he isn't where you can reach him, just be the good fellow enough to drop a line to Mrs. J. A. Howard, 418 Thurston avenue, Bowling Green, Ohio, and tell her what you know about Jack. She'd do as much for you.

All efforts to locate him here have failed. Chief Morrissey says

PERSONETTE

LOUIS BROWNLOW
Chairman of the District of Commissioners of the District of Columbia, has been in Janesville, Miss. He has been there some time now, and the next big job ahead had better look out.

Newsmen—Officers of the Wisconsin Shipbuilding and Navigation company believe the ship they build will furnish a profitable trade with South America. There is a loud call for tonnage to the ports of the southern neighbors of the United States. Chairman Payne of the shipping board is quoted as saying: "It is hoped the merchant marine may be owned and operated by private persons and corporations rather than by the government. Final disposition of the fleet will not affect the program outlined with regard to South American routes, as the ships, if sold, are to be sold with particular reference to routes selected by the board and board members to fit the growing needs of South America as served by the United States."

Chairman Payne said present plans for passenger service to the east coast of South America contemplate bi-weekly trips between New York, Rio de Janeiro, Santos, Montevideo, and Buenos Ayres.

La Crosse.—Because of the cancellation of the Milwaukee and White-water games, Director M. J. Wilton of the La Crosse State Normal basketball team, has arranged for a match with the Moorhead State Normal team to be played here next Saturday.

Oshkosh.—If the rivers and harbors bill presented in congress by Congressman Florian Lambert of this city, representing the Sixth district, is passed, it will mean several important improvements in the waters in this vicinity. Mr. Lambert has written here that the bill has gone through the house favorably, and if it is also passed by the senate it will be possible to have a survey made of the proposed harbor of refuge at the former golf grounds in West Allis, this city. The harbor of refuge at the golf links will be on Lake Route des Morts, the city having recently acquired the links for park purposes. Another item in the bill provides for the improvement of Green Bay harbor and the Fox river from Oshkosh to its mouth. A bill is also in congress for a survey of Luceo creek, between Fond du Lac and the village of Taycheedah, with the idea of establishing a harbor of refuge.

Sheboygan.—Benjamin Schmitz, a resident of Sheboygan county, and Edward Frank, St. Cloud, Manitowish county, were arrested by State Conservation Warden August Wolf, St. Cloud, and pleaded guilty before Justice Trester in this city to the charge of having cut down trees and killed two raccoons sheltered therein. They were fined $50 and costs each.

La Crosse.—Andrew Roth, aged 63, prominent architect, died at his home here.

Pond du Lac.—Farmers in the vicinity of the village of Lomira, believe that two wolves are responsible for the killing of 12 pigs owned by Nick Gindt, although Gindt lays the blame to dogs. Two wolves have been seen in this vicinity and it is said that dogs seldom attack hogs, so neighboring farmers believe the wolves responsible. Gindt estimates his loss at $120.

La Crosse.—Harvey H. Nicolai with a dog pursued a wolf through a densely populated farming community adjoining the city and killed the animal with a well directed shot, at the entrance to Mormon coulees. The wolf weighed 50 pounds and the hide was declared to be worth $25, while the bounty amounts to $20.
